

MELLON MAYS UNDERGRADUATE FELLOWSHIPS

Application Information and Instructions

WHAT THEY ARE

To address the shortage of minority scholars on college and university campuses, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation established the Mellon Mays Undergraduate Fellowship Program. The program is designed to encourage the most talented undergraduate students from groups traditionally underrepresented in graduate education, as well as others with a demonstrated commitment to eradicating racial disparities, to enter Ph.D. programs and pursue careers in research and college teaching. City College is one of over thirty participating colleges and universities nationwide.

The heart of the program is an undergraduate experience with special opportunities for academic and personal enrichment. Fellows become actively involved members of a close-knit community of aspiring scholars from numerous disciplines. They participate in ventures that draw them together as a group, teaching and learning from one another, as well as from the faculty.

Upon admission to the program, each Fellow is paired with a faculty mentor—a professor engaged in teaching, research, and other professional pursuits. Fellows will work with their mentors on guided research projects and, with the help of the mentors, experience the culture and activities of academic life. During the summers following both sophomore and junior year, Fellows will receive a $3,000 stipend to engage in an independent research project under the direction of a faculty mentor.

Each semester, Fellows gather to participate in a forum that highlights aspects of research and academic life as well as in workshops that help them prepare successful applications to graduate school. In spring semester of junior year, Fellows also participate in a team-taught, interdisciplinary (3 credit) Fellowship Seminar that focuses on varying topics of broad interest and relevance. At the annual spring semester research conference, Fellows are encouraged to present their research.

BENEFITS

Mellon Mays Undergraduate Fellowships provide the following benefits:

- A stipend of $1,000 per semester and a guaranteed stipend of $3,000 for summer research following both sophomore and junior year.
- Additional funds for academic support, including: research expenses; travel to conferences, research libraries, archives, and graduate schools of interest; tuition to study-abroad programs, language-training courses, or other appropriate programs.
- Repayment of up to $10,000 in undergraduate or graduate student loans for Fellows who enter eligible Ph.D. programs.
- Mentoring from a faculty member.
- Pre-graduate school advising, including workshops on applying to graduate school, financial aid, writing the personal statement, and preparing to take the GRE.
- Participation in regional MMUF conferences as an undergraduate and doctoral student.

HOW TO APPLY

Eligibility

- A minimum of 3.0 GPA and exceptional scholarly promise.
- Major in: a discipline in the humanities (Area Studies, Art History, English, Foreign Languages and Literatures, History, Musicology, Philosophy, Religion); selected physical sciences (Computer Science, Earth and Atmospheric Sciences, Math, Physics); or selected social sciences (Anthropology, Political Philosophy, Sociology).
- Desire to matriculate in a Ph.D. program and to pursue a career in research and teaching at the college or university level.
- Race and ethnicity (African-American, Latino, Native American) or demonstrated commitment to increasing opportunities for underrepresented minorities.
- Current sophomores or students with three to four more semesters before graduation.
- Status as US citizen or permanent resident (green card holder).

Application

- The attached application form.
- Two or more letters of recommendation from faculty members or others familiar with the applicant's academic performance and potential.
- For those who have attended a college other than City College, a college transcript.

Letters of recommendation should be sent directly to the Steering Committee. All documents should be mailed to:

City College Fellowships Office, (NAC 6/316)
The City College of New York
New York, NY 10031.

Application Deadline

Applications are due March 10.

Selection Criteria

The most promising applicants will be interviewed by the Director along with members of the Steering Committee and faculty mentors. Selection will be based on the strength of the student's academic record, academic focus and goals, faculty recommendations, and capacity to diversify the academy and/or demonstrated commitment to eradicating racial disparities in higher education.

RECOMMENDATIONS

List the two or more sponsors who are writing your recommendations.

Note: Only two recommendations are required. Since this is an academic fellowship, at least two letters should be from faculty members. Letters from academic advisors tend to be far less useful.
