Assistive Technology

Students who are registered with the AAC/SDS can utilize the Assistive Technology Lab as a resource for gaining access to their academic content.

Assistive devices and software are available for student use and include screen magnifiers, large monitors, screen readers, dictation tools, and reading and writing aids.

Assistive technology is also available on the computers at all three libraries at City College: Cohen Library, Science & Engineering Library, and Architecture Library, and on the Center for Worker Education (CWE) campus at the library and computer lab.
