Dear Students,

To create more opportunities to take more than one class per day while allowing students to travel at earlier times, we are introducing some changes in scheduling and programming for the spring 2024 semester. This action is one of the results of the student survey we sent out some weeks ago. Please note we will keep many elements of our schedule, such as 4 credit classes, and some will still meet from 6:00 to 9:20. However, we are also introducing new class times and modalities.

This Spring, 2024, we will start offering some classes at 4:30 p.m., combining the earlier time with CUNY’s new modes of instruction. With this change, students could attend class one day and complete two four-credit courses. Many of you are already taking classes combining online synchronous and asynchronous work. The new schedule is an attempt to recognize and expand these practices.

For example, on Monday, someone could take:

IAS 31125, 1CHA 20th Century Revolutions in the Americas Mon, 4:30 - 6:10 p.m.
And
IAS 31102, 1CHA Capitalism and Anti-Capitalism, Mon 6:20 - 8:00 p.m.

—These four credit courses would follow the Hybrid Asynchronous teaching modality—two hours in person and two hours of asynchronous work via Blackboard or another LMS.
—We will offer ECE courses in pairs beginning at 4:30 p.m. In this way, students might return home at 8 p.m. if they take a second class.

—New section numbers display the day and the descriptions of class modalities.

—The number indicates the day.

1= Monday 2= Tuesday 3= Wednesday 4= Thursday 5= Friday 6= Saturday

The letters indicate the modality.

Here are some examples:

1CWE In-person: You are required to be physically present in class at 25 Broadway, 7th Floor.

1COS Online Synchronous: You log on to Zoom to attend class. You may also be expected to participate in small-group work in Zoom break-out rooms. All contact hours are online, in real time.

1CHS Monday Hybrid Synchronous: Hybrid synchronous classes offer a combination of in-person and online instruction/contact hours. Online portions of the class are offered synchronously via Zoom.

1CHA Monday Hybrid Asynchronous: Hybrid synchronous classes offer a combination of in-person and online instruction/contact hours. Online portions of the class are offered asynchronously via Blackboard.

1COM= Monday Online Mixed: Online Mixed classes offer a combination of online synchronous meetings and asynchronous online work. All required instructional hours are online.

1CHX= Hyflex: You have the choice to attend class in-person or on Zoom.

CWNT Online Asynchronous: All instruction is fully online, with assignments submitted according to deadlines set by your instructor.

The list below explains the modalities and you must review it carefully before making a decision to enroll in courses.

To make this a successful experience, it is now more important than ever to look over the entire schedule and see which options are best for you before meeting with your advisor. If successful, we shall extend our program to provide further flexibility and convenience for our students. We want to listen to you and your needs. Please feel free to contact me with any comments or ideas on improving our service; you can email me at caguasaco@ccny.cuny.edu or call 212-925-6625 Ext 224.

Sincerely,

Carlos Aguasaco, Ph.D.
Professor and Chair
Department of Interdisciplinary Arts & Sciences
NEW! Instruction Modes:
CWE sections are fully in-person classes at 25 Broadway, 7th Floor
COS sections are Online Synchronous classes (zoom or similar)
COM sections are Online Mix, i.e. a combination of online asynchronous and zoom
CHS and WHS sections are Hybrid Synchronous, i.e. a combination of in-person and zoom
CHA sections are Hybrid Asynchronous, i.e. a combination on in-person and online asynchronous
CHX sections are Hyflex, i.e. student can choose to attend in-person or on zoom
CWNT sections are fully Online Asynchronous

Fiction Workshop I
Tuesday 6:20 - 8:00 PM
Neals
Hybrid Asynchronous (In-person and Blackboard)
For students who wish to advance from Creative Writing to concentrate on writing short stories. This is an intensive course in learning how to use language to convey narrative, theme, emotion. We will work on development of character, structure and plot and all the energy of linguistic engagement that makes someone else want to read your work. You will be expected to write steadily throughout the term, to read and analyze short stories and to take part in class workshop readings of and commentary on student work. Be prepared to work hard. 4 hrs.; 4 crs. (W)(U)

ENGL 32203, CWNT [21707]
The Short Story
McDonald
Online Asynchronous
This class is designed as an ongoing discussion about the short story and how the form affects and is affected by broader stratifications in history and culture. We will begin by reading and analyzing a mix of classic and contemporary models of the short story, including Edgar Allan Poe, Nikolai Gogol, Alice Munro, Chinua Achebe, and Jorge Luis Borges. In the second half of the course, we will explore the short story cycle as a form of ethnic self-definition and transcultural reinvention. We will read multiple linked stories by writers such as Edwidge Danticat, Sherman Alexie, Tim O’Brien, Junot Diaz, Julia Alvarez, Robert Olen Butler, and Jhumpa Lahiri, looking at how these authors appropriate this literary form to maintain their cultural heritage while adapting to the form and practices of a new culture. We will expand the critical context for our readings of these stories by using secondary sources to widen the scope of our literary analyses.

HIST 31964, CWNT [21708]
History of Childhood in America
Flowers
Online Asynchronous
Children are our most precious creations; yet few people know much about their place in history. This course will offer a sweeping view of the history of childhood in the United States from the pre-colonial era to the present day. Readings, discussion, films and other materials will shed light on the experiences of all sorts of children—the rich, the middle class, the poor and the enslaved from a variety of backgrounds, including American Indian, European, African, Latin American, Caribbean and Asian. The course will also compare numerous ideologies about childhood, theories of childrearing, laws governing children's lives, and social actions taken to protect children throughout the nation's history. Students will read a combination of books, articles and historical documents. Writing exercises will provide practice in working with chronologies, analyzing historical documents and comparing and contrasting various historical moments. 4 hrs.; 4 cr. (W)(U)

IAS 10000, 1CHA [21710]
Writing for Interdisciplinary Studies I
Monday 6:20 - 8:00 PM
Sweeting
Hybrid Asynchronous (In-person and Blackboard)
This is an interdisciplinary, humanities-based writing course. Reading includes a wide range of essays, each proposing a ground-breaking theory pertinent to a particular discipline. These essays will be matched with short fiction and shorter essays providing a social context for the theories proposed by writers such as Sigmund Freud, Karl Marx, Dr. Martin Luther King, Carl Jung, Alice Walker and Virginia Woolf. In response to these combinations, text-based student essays of at least 750 words will pair interdisciplinary theory with a social context. The course emphasizes critical reading, thinking, and writing skills as well as various rhetorical approaches to the composition of the academic essay. (Formerly Core Humanities I, Literature, Art and Human Experience) 4 hrs, 4 cr.

Art On and Off The Wall
Friday  5:30 - 8:50 PM
Benedetto
In-person
Art On and Off the Wall is a rapid-fire, immersive introduction to methods of art-making with a focus on 'design' as a metaphor for everything from where to put the line on a piece of paper to what it means to create a time, location and social context in your life to make and show art. In addition to an introduction to a variety of methods of art production (painting, sculpture, installation, with a particular emphasis on drawing as the basic tool of visual thinking), we will engage in some more free-style off-the-wall modes of thinking, including making art in and for a wide variety of spaces from a bedroom, to an exhibition, to a public space. Our class time will be divided between teacher and student presentations, studio work, and class discussions. Every week there will be a teacher-led presentation of art-historical precedents, ranging from painting to music. We will also explore how alternative exhibition tactics illuminate the possibilities of various creative enterprises. There will be weekly assignments with occasional outside reading. There is an expectation of high energy, willingness to experiment and improvise, and class participation. By the end of the class we will have produced a variety of projects, an artist book, and a class exhibition. Supplemental Class Fee: $100. 4 hrs.; 4 crs.

The Essay
Wednesday  6:20 - 8:00 PM
Moore
Hybrid Asynchronous (In-person and Blackboard)
The essay often gets a bad rap these days. It’s frequently associated with the five-paragraph work of formal essay writing. But the essay, in its purest form, is the exploration of an idea, no matter how many paragraphs or diversions—stylistic or rhetorical—it takes. The word essay itself comes from the old French essai, which means, “to try,” and the Latin: rudimentum, which means “trial or attempt.” So, how do we define Creative Non-Fiction? It’s not quite journalism. It's not quite “formal” essay writing but essay writing in its wholesome form. Creative Non-Fiction is a branch of writing that employs the literary techniques usually associated with actual people, places, or events. Creative Non-Fiction requires imagination—it evokes an image, draws on emotion, and it creates a lasting impression on the reader. In this class, we will “try” and write about our lives as we mirror, and read from a broad category of prose works such as personal essays and memoirs, narrative essays, observational and descriptive essays. Pre-requisites: Writing for Interdisciplinary Studies I and II or equivalent. (Formerly ENGL 31134) 4 hrs.; 4 crs. (W)(U)

Advanced Composition
Tuesday 6:00 - 9:20 PM
Sweeting
Online Synchronous (Zoom)
This course will introduce students to cultural and literary theory. We will survey a number of important schools of critical theory, including formalism, structuralism, deconstruction, psychoanalytic, new historicism, post-colonial and cultural studies. Theorists studied will include Roland Barthes, Michel Foucault, Susan Sontag, and Sigmund Freud. Their theory will be studied alongside a variety of “texts”, including the poetry of William Wordsworth and Samuel Coleridge, Shakespeare’s The Tempest, Flaubert’s Madame Bovary, and Anderson’s Winesburg, Ohio, as well as Jamaica Kincaid’s Annie John, the art of Edward Hopper, the Log of Christopher Columbus, The National Defense Education Act of 1954, and Why Johnny Can’t Read. The goal is to acquire a new critical vocabulary --"critique"--and, of course, to sharpen critical reading, thinking and writing skills. Students will be required to write a number of shorter essays on the above texts and a final ten-page critical essay on that perennial bestseller, written by none other than Dr. Seuss, The Cat in the Hat. Capitalism and Anti-Capitalism
Monday 6:20 - 8:00 PM
Woessner
Online Mixed (Zoom and Blackboard)
Capitalism and Anti-Capitalism from Adam Smith to Slavoj Žižek. Wealth and poverty, booms and busts, individual opportunity and public responsibility—the history of capitalism is a history of tensions and oppositions. This interdisciplinary course explores some of the contradictions of capitalism since the 18th century, when philosophers, theologians, economists, politicians, and social reformers first began to argue about the merits of private property, free markets, and wage-labor production. We investigate what some of the most important thinkers and writers in the western tradition—including Adam Smith, Benjamin Franklin, Karl Marx, Rosa Luxemburg, Thorstein Veblen, John Maynard Keynes, Joseph Schumpeter, Georges Bataille, and Slavoj Žižek—have described as either the virtues or the vices of capitalism. Among the historical and contemporary topics discussed in the course are the relations between labor and finance, state regulation and free-market speculation, nationalism and globalization, individual self-interest and socially minded public participation, liberalism and communism, reform and revolution. We will explore how proponents of capitalism have viewed it as a progressive and liberating force (“greed is good”), which has promoted peaceful cooperation amongst the world’s peoples; while critics have seen it as doctrine founded upon enslavement and exploitation that has lead only to oppression, violence, and war. Students with interests in contemporary history, philosophy, politics, economics, sociology and/or activism are encouraged to participate. Course requirements include classroom participation, short essays, and a final paper. 4hr. 4cr. (U)

20th Century Revolutions in the Americas
Monday 4:30 - 6:00 PM
Clark
Online Mixed (Zoom and Blackboard)
The mid-to-late 20th century in Latin America and the Caribbean was no less turbulent than in the North. Throughout the Americas during this period, leftists were insisting upon the redress of a number of socio-cultural ills. In response to their demands, the more conservative, or “right-wing” elements—the Church, the military, the upper classes—often supported military coups as a bulwark against the perceived threat of communism. The unrest was further fueled by the interference of two important Cold War combatants: the United States, and the Soviet Union, often represented in the region by Cuba. This course will closely examine “case studies” of several mid-to-late 20th century revolutions in the Americas, one in South America, one in Central America, one in the Caribbean, and one in North America. The history leading up to each will be closely examined. The revolution itself will be explored through the best sources for each, including but not limited to: Liberation Theology, art, Theatre of the Oppressed, novels, poetry, film, political theory, philosophy, and the law. Regular participation in the Discussion Board threads on the Blackboard course site, as well as a final project will be requirements of the course. 4 hr.; 4 cr. (W)(U)

Race and Beauty
Tuesday 6:20 - 8:00 PM
Orange
Online Mixed (Zoom and Asynchronous)
The late great Hip-hop M.C., Notorious B.I.G. said, “black and ugly as ever, however”. B.I.G.’s “however”, represents a position of contention with contemporary popular standards, and for us an opportunity to explore how “attractiveness” is racialized. Race and beauty are very popular topics in the U.S., yet there are few attempts to understand how often they converge and inform our perceptions of each other, and our political and economic systems. Throughout the term, we will seriously examine the aesthetic values we attribute to common indicators of beauty and race, such as hair, complexion, and body types. This course will include various academic disciplines and methodologies, but will privilege the intellectual contributions of Black feminist scholars who more often engage these subjects because of how frequently they impact the lives of black women. This class will also specifically address such terms as “metro-sexual”, and where and how men enter discussions on race and beauty. 4 hr. 4 cr. (W)(U)

Women’s Rights as Human Rights
Wednesday 4:30 - 6:10 PM
Zach
Online Mixed (Zoom and Blackboard)
This course is a critical exploration of the history and discourse of women’s human rights from a global perspective. In readings, lectures, and class discussion, we will consider the theoretical reframing of women’s rights as human rights from an interdisciplinary perspective. A central part of the course will evaluate the efficacy of applications of human rights issues to particular gendered arenas of violence and agency. We will take into consideration how the history of colonialism, euro-centrism, patriarchalism, and neoliberalism contribute to the structures that shape women’s lives. Taking a non-normative, critical, and interdisciplinary approach, our goal is to rethink the assumptions, challenges, and potential of cross-cultural perspectives in negotiating gender as a human right. 4 hr. 4 cr. This course will examine the impact of women workers on contemporary U.S. society and the role of work in women’s lives. Women are most unlike male workers because they have two work sites: in the paid labor force and in the household. This course will focus on the intersection, conflicts and tensions within as well as between these work sites. The primary goal of the course is to provide students with the ability to understand the social, economic and historical contexts of their lives as workers. 4 hrs.; 4 crs. (W)(U)

This course will survey the literature of one of New York City’s most diverse boroughs, Brooklyn. The course will begin with a selection of essays written by the philosopher Henri Lefebvre having to do with what he calls “the production of space,” and academic essays written by a number of geographers on issues such as landmarking, zoning, immigration, and gentrification. A selection from Jane Jacobs’ The Death and Life of Great American Cities will also be included. We will then begin the literary component of the course by reading Walt Whitman’s poem, “Crossing Brooklyn Ferry” (the Brooklyn Bridge was not completed until 1883), and follow with novels encompassing as many neighborhoods in Brooklyn as possible within the timeframe, including Flatbush in Paule Marshall’s Brown Girl, Brownstones, Boerum Hill/Downtown Brooklyn in Jonathan Letham’s The Fortress of Solitude, Vinegar Hill and “South Brooklyn” in Colm Tóibín’s Brooklyn: A Novel, and Williamsburg in Betty Smith’s inimitable classic, A Tree Grows in Brooklyn. Historical research through the extensive on-line archive of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle will accompany most of the reading for the course, and a long walk through Brooklyn on an early spring Saturday is a distinct possibility. 4hr., 4cr. Listening to The City
Wednesday 6:20 - 8:00 PM
Cardenas Pena
Online Mixed (Zoom and Asynchronous)
How do you experience the city? Do you "tune-out" with headphones, lose yourself in your smartphone, or simply put your head down, speed walk, and shut out the world with your own internal conversations? In this class students will learn to break through these habitual barriers to experience and reacquaint themselves with their city through their bodies, mainly through listening. There are many artistic, ecological and even political concerns that listening provides access to — specifically in urban environments — and students will engage their oft-neglected sense of hearing to experience the sounds and sonic contours of New York City. Students will read texts from the fields of cultural studies, acoustic ecology, economics, musicology, philosophy, art, and art criticism to develop a broad view of the various types of practices that engage our ears and our bodies. Students will actively listen to various locations throughout the city and work on projects that document their experiences through expository and creative writing, audio recording and through photography (and/or video) while engaging with critical texts that place their activities into historical, cultural, artistic and political contexts. 4 hrs., 4 crs.

Latin American Cinema
Tuesday 4:30 - 6:00 PM
Aguasaco
Hybrid Asynchronous (In-person and Blackboard)
This course is a survey of the historical development of Latin American Cinema. This semester, we will specifically concentrate in the study of comedies that reflect on the immigrant experience. A discussion on laughter, humor, parody and irony will interlock with a deep analysis of the "structures of feeling" reflected in each film. What is funny? What is not funny? Does humor expire? Is it possible to export humor? Is there a level of truthfulness and social criticism in comedy? In this course we will discuss the real "Nacho Libre"-- and will be acquainted with Cantinflas, the "Mexican Chaplin". The Dominican character of "Valbuena" will be contrasted with "Carlos Benjumea", his Colombian counterpart. All the films will be dubbed or subtitled in English. 4 hrs.; 4 crs. (W)(U)

Childhood Poverty
Matthews
Online Asynchronous
This course uses an interdisciplinary framework to examine the issues of poverty as they impact children around the world. The primary objectives of the course include 1.) providing students with opportunities to understand and analyze the impact of poverty over time; 2.) examining the ways in which countries leverage social policy to combat poverty; and 3.) exploring the psychological and social effects of poverty on children and youth. Special topics include the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, child labor, international trade agreements, and the impact of poverty on institutions that serve children such as schools, healthcare institutions, and leisure/recreation facilities. 4hr.,4 cr (W)(U)

Between Heaven and Hell: The History of Utopian and Dystopian Thought
Woessner

Online Asynchronous
This advanced, interdisciplinary course examines the historical legacies and contemporary relevance of utopian and dystopian thought. Stretching from Plato’s Republic through Thomas Moore’s Utopia and Francis Bacon’s New Atlantis, all the way up Edward Bellamy’s Looking Backward and the “cyber-utopianism,” as Evgeny Morozov has called it, of Silicon Valley today, utopian thought is a vast and varied phenomenon. Its aspirations have informed philosophical and political treatises, mobilized social movements, and borrowed deeply into popular culture. The same could be said for its shadow discourse, dystopianism, which in the current age of global warming, refugee crises, and a resurgent neo-fascism, has gone from being the purview of science fiction to the stuff of newspaper headlines. The eerie contemporary relevance of Margaret Atwood’s A Handmaid’s Tale is a case in point. Highlighting the ways in which utopian and dystopian works have expressed both our highest hopes and our basest fears—about society, technology, and the environment, among other things—this course shows how speculative thought interacts with real-world contexts and consequences. It will demonstrate how utopian and dystopian ideas more often reflect this world than the one that is to come. Students with interests in history, literature, and philosophy, as well as those interested in any of the social movements that have been connected to utopian and dystopian discourses—such as progressivism, feminism, anti-racism—are encouraged to attend. 4 hr. 4 cr. Youth Literature: Theories and Reading Practices Among Children and Young Adults
Benedicty

Online Asynchronous
The goal of this course is to counter misconceptions that youth are no longer reading. Most importantly, by the end of the course, students will be able to identify specific criteria that help them to gauge which books and/or graphic novels are appropriate for varying-aged youth. As such, this course is geared as much towards teachers and parents as it is towards those who love, but also struggle to read. For interestingly, half of Young Adult (“YA”) readers are adults. Drawing on both canonical theoretical texts around psychology of children and young adults (i.e. J.A. Appleyard; J. Campbell; S. Edwards; E. Erikson; M. Montessori; P. Freire; J. Piaget), but also more recent work (i.e. C. Ní Bhroin and P. Kennon; G. Mendes; M. Weiner; C. del Valle Schorske), students shall determine why certain novels attract young adults’ attention and why others do not. We also look at how certain books seem to work for a wide range of young adult readers: how despite outside appearances, they deal quite poignantly with intersectional questions of social class, gender, and race. As a fully online course, all the courses are conducted online. The final online class periods are dedicated to reporting the results of a “book fair,” using either Facebook, Wordpress, Padlet, or another online venue that allows for both text and image. Also, part of this online presence shall be creating two ideas for attracting young adults, either in a class, or in the general public to reading the chosen prize-winning works.4 hr., 4cr. (W)(U)

Disability Narratives
Almash

Online Asynchronous
Nothing About Us Without Us is the motto of the Disability Rights Movement, yet disabled people have historically been among the most overlooked and discriminated against groups in society. But times are changing, and disabled activists, students, artists, actors, writers, etc. have fought for the right to claim their differences proudly and demand full representation and participation.

The works we will look at in this course will raise those voices, and ask important questions about identity and difference, representation, and freedom. We will discuss “disability” as a social construction and challenge concepts of “normal.” Through first-person literary and nonfiction texts we will explore how disability is imagined and reimagined by disabled people, and the ways that disability intersects with other aspects of identity such as race, class, gender, and sexuality.

Brace yourself: Revolutions are born out of oppression and violence and the readings for this course can be as vulgar and brutal as they are beautiful and empowering. Together we’ll sort through it all to find relevance. 4 hr. 4 cr. (W)(U)

Youth and the Right to the City: Planning, Participation, Urban Design
Thursday 4:30 - 6:00 PM
Schaller
Hybrid Asynchronous (In-person and Blackboard)
Young people, especially adolescents, are often pathologized, ignored and left out of the design and political life of cities. In this course, we will center the right to the city of youths and explore how we might design not just child-friendly but youth-friendly cities. We will define what we mean by “the right to the city” and how we center young people in the struggle for the right to the city. Major topics will include, but will not be limited to: youth culture, street art and graffiti; LGBTQ youth and the right to the city; youth social movements; urban culture, space and skateboarding; teenagers, sense of place and belonging, youth and participatory research; as well as youth participation in urban planning. 4 hr.; 4 cr. This course will trace the changing definition of American Studies, originating as a field of study with a focus primarily on the United States to projects spanning both American continents. Students will study the field’s relationship to twentieth-century social movements and related theoretical categories, including Marxist theory, cultural studies, feminist theory, post-colonial theory, and ethnic studies. They will learn the various research techniques necessary to produce graduate-level writing in their courses in the Study of the Americas. Students will choose a topic, develop a research agenda, conduct interdisciplinary research, and write a final paper of 15-20 pages. Open only to students accepted into the M.A. in the Study of the Americas program. 3 hr.; 3 cr. (G)

In-person
This course will review the history and evidence of inequality and social mobility worldwide. The first part of the class will focus on rising concerns of income and wealth inequality in the United States and policy preferences. The second part of the class will focus on social mobility. We will review the existing literature on social mobility and draw a comparison around the world. We will then focus specifically on evidence from the Americas. We will examine the determinants of social mobility, such as race, place, and education. This course will also focus on the role of higher education in determining social mobility and the long-term impact on policy and governance. 3 hrs, 3 cr. (G)

Literary Landscapes of Slavery and Freedom (Graduate)
Monday  5:30 - 7:10 PM
McDonald
In-person
The story of the African Diaspora in the Americas is circumscribed by the Transatlantic slave trade. This course will look at the stories of slavery and its aftermaths across the Americas, paying attention to the journeys taken, by force or by choice, within and across countries, oceans, seas, and continents. We will also take into account journeys that enabled formerly enslaved people and their descendants to resist the totalizing trauma of slavery and imagine a different life for themselves and their families. We will begin with the classic slave narrative, which traces the journey from bondage to freedom. We will then turn to contemporary novels, poetry, and essays that illustrate both the physical and psychic consequences of slavery as well as the power of community and the power of imagination to create healing spaces, out of which new stories can emerge. To deepen our readings of the literary works, we will also read recent scholarship that explores the global resonance of the afterlives of slavery. 3 hr. 3 cr. (G)

Transitions may be the most constant feature of everyday life. With endless uncertainties that are exacerbated by political turmoil, pandemic unpredictability, and climate crisis, our quotidian experiences are steeped in mutability. Transitions present us with both challenges and opportunities, not only in our everyday lives but also in our work. Within the word transition, emphasizing the prefix trans opens up avenues of thought that celebrate the in-betweenness of our state of being. Rather than focusing on the pressures to move on to the next thing (to be post-COVID, post-racial, post-colonial, as it may), tarrying in transition helps us to appreciate the difficult path toward restoring healthy relationships. This includes but is not limited to transnationalism, trans identities, transitivity, transdisciplinarity, translanguaging, transparency, transhumanism, transluminescence, translation, transliteration, transcendence, transfusion, and transmutation." (SVAFF 2023) We will spend class time viewing and discussing the latest and greatest ethnographic films as presented at the Society for Visual Anthropology Film Festival 2023 in Toronto with students defining their own personal point of view on what this word means in the context of each film—in Transition. 3 hr. 3 cr. (G)

Children in Film
Saturday 1:00 - 2:40 PM
Kopp
Hybrid Synchronous (In-person and Zoom)
This course will explore a wide range of challenges facing children around the world. Specifically, we'll look at the way these issues have been portrayed in films, past and present, both in fiction and in documentary. We'll consider the power of the medium of film to help us understand these issues, as well as its limitations. Topics will include adult caregiving (or the lack of it); poverty; homelessness; substance abuse; domestic abuse; child labor; children in times of war; and children with special learning challenges (blindness; deafness; autism; emotional disorders, etc.). Even when the subject might seem at first glance gloomy, we'll find much to give us hope because these are, after all, movies about children and the possibilities for the future. Recommended for students with concentrations in Childhood Studies, Disabilities Studies, Social Welfare, Global Labor Studies, and Literary, Media, and Visual Arts. 4 hrs.; 4 crs. (W)(U)
