

Congratulations Graduating Seniors

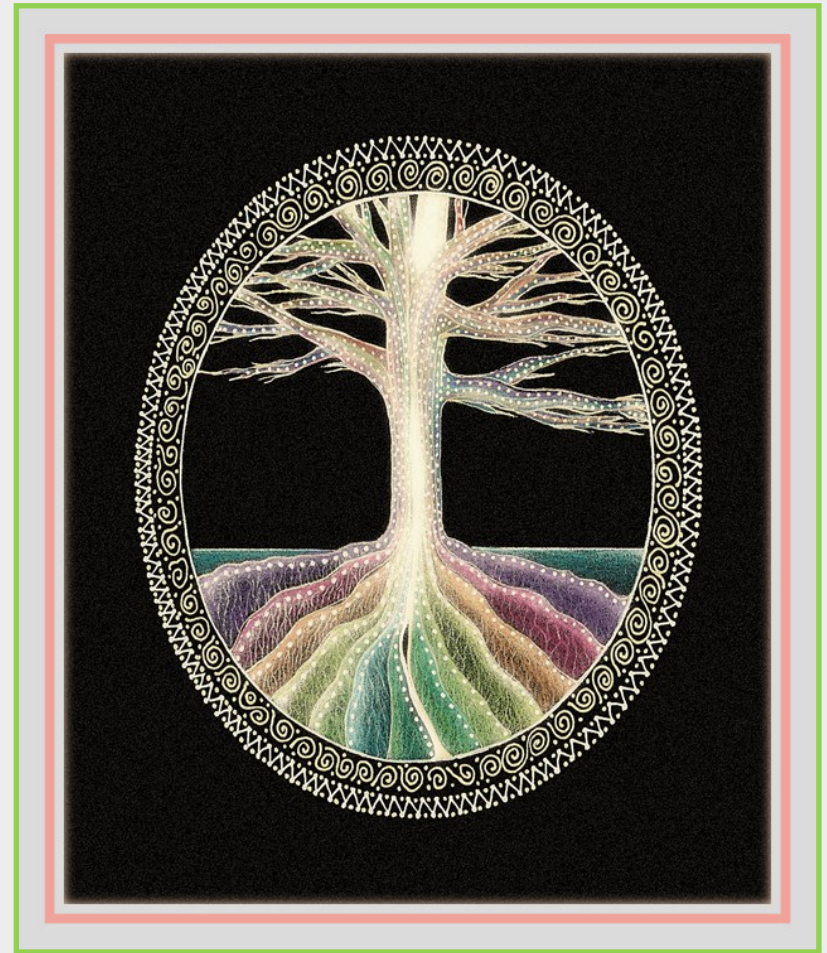

Babatunde Alade graduated in Fall 2016 earning a B.A./M.A. degree in Financial Economics and a minor in Applied Mathematics. He has been accepted with full scholarship to a Phd program in Economics at Syracuse University. This summer he was selected by the American Economic Association Summer Program (one of only 40 students nationwide) for a prestigious summer internship in Michigan. At CCNY Babatunde was a Zitrin Scholar. Over the course of his undergraduate career, Babatunde has not only devoted time to his academics, but he has also focused on contributing to his campus and community in any way he could. He has tutored for the SSSP Program in Mathematics and Economics for the last 2 years. Babatunde has served as a treasurer for the African Student Union (ASU). He has visited the Manhattan Center for Science and Mathematics (MSCM) twice a week to provide classroom support to 9th grade Math teachers and tutored the young students in their Math courses. He has been conducting research since his sophomore year and has worked on research projects concerning Conservation Biology of endangered species to his current research which is studying the financial markets and using past data to predict future returns. Last spring he presented a poster presentation of his research at the SSSP Scholars Showcase. Outside of school, Babatunde enjoys playing soccer, going for a run, and honing his cooking skills.
